CAMDEN AFFAIRS.

THE CARNIVAL LAST EVENING.—The second annual carnival at the Camden Skating Park came off last evening. Between two and three thousand persons were present, including the clife of Camden. A great many came over, during the evening, from your city, and about 9 o'clock the Park was literally crowded. In the middle of the enclosure a large pole had been temporarily raised, to which were suspended ropes leading to different parts of the fence; said ropes being filled with variezated Ohinese lanterns, which imparted a light almost equal to the moon. Everything was propitious for this great event of the season—the sky overhead being clear and bright, the stars shining in all their glory, and the ice being in splendid condition. An excellent band of music was in attendance, and discoursed popular polkas, waitzes, etc. As the band commenced playing, all over the ice could be seen couples attempting to keep time to the tune; many suc-THE CARNIVAL LAST EVENING.-The attempting to keep time to the tune; many succeeded very well, but others, not being used to dancing on skates, found themselves in a very unpleasant position. Nothing daunted, they were up and at it again, and before the evening was over had mastered the first rudiments, and no doubt the next time will be able to avoid the tumbling-down step. Many persons were attired in costume—Punches, silors, marines, old men, etc., had many repre entatives. The ladies were not behind the gentlemen in regard to fancy dresses, as we saw a few who were attired in fancy costumes, and you could see an old woman skating with an adolescent marine, or a young lady with a man who looked old enough to be her grandiather.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

[For Additumat Local Rems see Third Page. THE TRAGEDY OF YESTERDAY. -In our

latest edition of yesterday atternoon we gave an account of a tragedy the narration of which has startled the denizens of our quiet city. The has startled the denizens of our quiet city. The following are the particulars:—

The actor in this fearful crime was a man by the name of James McCormick, aged 52 years. He was a short, thick-set man, with smooth face and a quiet manner. He had for some time past followed the sea for a living, and had been in the naval service during the war. At the time of the murder he was out of employ-ment, having been discharged from the Navy Yard, where he had been employed as a laborer until last Wednesday.

For years past McCormick had been in the habit of ill-using and abusing his wife Elizabeth, who was a delicate and rather sickly woman, two years his junior. But it is asserted that it was only when in his cups that he did so, and when he was sober he was a kind husband and a good neighbor. Complaints had frequently been made of his conduct to her, and she has

But the end of his cruelty culminated yesterday in the cruel murder of his wife. About half-past 11 o'clock the neighborhood was alarmed by the sound of a violent quarrel in-McCormick's house, which is in McLaughlin's court, in the rear of No. 424 Marriott street. Shortly afterwards one of the neighbors had McCormick arrested for an assault and battery upon his wife, and he was committed, after a hearing on that charge, by Alderman Lutz. Soon after his commutal on that charge, Alderman Lutz received word that Mrs. McCormick was dead, and he made out a commitment against McCormick on a charge of murder. On going to the scene of the occurrence to learn the real state of affairs, our reporter learned many additional particulars. The murder was first discovered about 12 o'clock noon, by some blood trickling under the front door-way. On going inside a neighbor found Mrs. McCormick partially lying on a settee, with the blood still trickling down from a wound in her leg on to the floor, where a large mass of clotted gore had collected on the rag carpet. The Coroner was notified, and removed the woman, and the blood was removed and washed up as far as could be. The following testimony was given by the next-door neighbor. He says of McCormick—That yesterday morning he had been drinking and quarrelled with his wife. A neighbor called in and pacified them, and then McCormick lay down on a settee. The same neighbor after-wards heard the wire of McCormick cry out, "Jimmy, don't kick me!" Then all was quiet, until they saw a quantity of blood that had come from Mrs. McCormick. She had been kicked on the leg, and she bled to death from the wounds made. He had attempted her life, and often threat-ened to kill her, and she lived in dread of her When he was charge! with the murder, McCormick made a defense that she had fallen, and cut her leg over a bucket.

A BROKER MISSING-FEARS OF FOUL PLAY,—On Saturday evening last, about nine o'clock, Mr. Isaac Rowe, a broker doing business in the office of Mr. Thomas A. Truefitt, on Gold street, arrived at his residence, No. 511 South Eleventh street, in this city. He placed his wallet on the mantel, and shortly after left the house, since which time nothing whatever has been seen or heard of him. The family are in great distress on account of his disappearance, and have placed the detectives on his track, but as yet without any avail. Mr. Rowe was frequently in the habit of carrying considerable oney with him, and although he left his wallet in the house previous to his disappearance, it is not known but that he had other money abhis person at the time. It is greatly feared that has been waylaid by some desperadoes, and foully dealt with.

Mr. Rowe is a man of middle height, stoutly built, with a full, fresh face and prominent nose His hair is slightly tinged with grey; beard worn only under the chip. He dresses usually in black. If any person can furnish his family with any information concerning his where abouts or fate, they will afford great relief to a stricken family.

LEHIGH UNIVERSITY.-During the year 1865, by the munificence of the Hon. Asa Packer, arrangements were periected for the founding and erection of an educational institu tion at South Bethlenem, Penusylvania, which -hould be designated as the Lehleh University since which time one large building has been completed, and Packer Hall is being rapidly erected. The object of this institution is to provide opportunities for imparting to young men a complete pro'essional education, which should not only supply their general wants, but nt them for immediate and active partici-pation in the practical and professional duties of the time. The educational qualities of this University will be apparent when we amounted that Henry Coppee, LL. D., President, and Professor of History and English Literature, for-merly connected with the United States Military Academy at West Point, and latterly as presiding officer of the University of Pennsylvania, located in this city; the Rev. JOHN SMITH IN TROUBLE .- Some time ano, when John committed suicide, we thought that we had done with him. But it was not long afterwards that he was up for murder, and after that, the last we heard of him he was arrested as a suspicious character. He was last evening arrested at Beach and Brown streets, on a charge of interfering with an officer in the discharge of his duties. Officer Hart had arrested a man for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, when John interfered and not the prisoner off. The consequence was that John was himself arrested, and, after a hearing before Alderman Toland, was held in $500 bal to answer the charge.

IN THE BUCKET BUSINESS. - George Fisher, a young man, was arrested at Eighth and Catherine streets last evening, on a charge of larceny. It appears that he went into a provision store at the corner of Eighth and Catharine streets, and picking up half a dozon buckets, was making off with them, when the proprietor of store, seeing the articles disappearing, followed in their wake, and soon brought the thief to, and handed him over to an officer. He had a hearing before Alderman Pottinger, who

A Horse Case-Some Rich Develop-MENTS-How John Levi and His Son David SOUGHT TO REPLENISH THEIR STUD. - About two months since, three lads, named James Springer, aged eighteen, David Hemphill, aged sixteen, and David Levi, about fifteen, agreed together to go into the country and steal some horses. The evening arrived, but Levi "backed out." The two others started. They proceeded to Chester county, and stole two horses belonging to James and William Fleming, of West Fallow Township, and made off.

Township, and made off.

The owners immediately had posters printed giving a description of the horses, and offered $100 for the recovery of them and the appre sension of the thieves. Sergeant Crout Policeman George Dehaven immediately took the matter in hand, got information piece by piece, and finally restored the property to the owners. John K Gardner, after a difficult and day the quarto—James Springer. David Hemphill, John Levi, and David Levi—had a hearing before Alderman Hurley, the two former charging the latter with being accessories.

From the evidence of James Springer, it appears that the defendants were told by Levi, when they went up to the country, to be careful when they came down with the horses; when they arrived in town they took the horses to Berkenstock's stable at Levi's request; in two or three days the money for feeding them was paid by Levi, and they were taken away from the stable. Levi then proposed to send one of them -agrey horse—"over Jersey," so as he could not be seen. With the other horse the two defendants took a load of glass to Camden. Levi' claimed the horse he had sent to Jersey as his property, as he had paid to feed him. The horse was sent to Jersey and put to pasture with a farmer about two miles out. The bay horse—the one the delendants had—was to go out to pasture on the Nicetown lane; but he (Levi) didn't tell them whereabours, While the horses were in Levi's yard, his eldest son, Nathan, put some dye on the borse's foot, and on the star in his forchead; his father was standing by his side at the time. He said he would get a bottle of regular dye. and sent his son down to the barber's, and offered to give him a dozen bay rum bottles for a bottle of the original hair colorer. He was to pay defendants $25 for a suit of clothes and a watch, for the bay horse. Levi's wife told the lads they ought to present her children with a pair of shoes, after they had disposed of the borse. The bay nag was sold to one George Rayzard.

The witnesses were cross-questioned by Mr. Levi after the following fashion, "What for you tells dese thinks? Idid ish no anythinks about dish house; yoush fold me him was in Berkenstock's;" witness replied that Levi had toldhim he had no room, and that he had told him to take the house where he did.

Mr. Levi resumed, "Yoush feeles came to mish plaze and toldish me you ad von horish to sell, dat you hash ben keep him for four or five days, and you vanted to swop for you wagon mit barness hay! Den I givelyou von $4 for dem borse, and you borrow von wagon for to go mit Witness said he didn't do any thing of the

The witness further stated that Levi's oldest son helped to take the horses down to Berken-stock's stable, and David Levi was going with him when he went to steal the horses; he wouldn't go the night they started, but understood they were going.

David Hemphill was examined, and corroborated all the statements of his confederate, and stated that Levi's son came to his house and told him he had better clear out as the detec-tives were after him; he told him he would not do snything of the kind.

John Levi was examined, and acknowledged that he had told them they had better send the grey horse to New Jersey, but the reason he did it was because they could board him cheao, Springer was recalled, and stated that Levi told him to go to the corner of Fourth and Berks streets, and he would see a man there; he was to ask him where he could get good stabling for two horses, and this man was to tell him "ye-," and he was to send the horses around to Berkin stock's. Then witness was to make a bargain with him to pay $150 for the bay, and he was to get $160. Levi told us every morning we took the horses out to keep a sharp lookout.

son David were held in $1000 bail. The two lads were committed to prison.

BURGLARY-RESULT OF LEAVING DOORS OPEN .- About a quarter of an hour past midnight this morning, Officer Sherret, of Fifth District Police, found the door of the Mrs. Franklin, open. He went in and lighted the gas and found that the goods, consisting of dry goods and trimmings, were tumbled about and lying heaped that in a confused mass. He awoke the family who lived in the dwelling part of the bouse, and found that a part of the goods had been removed. About daylight this morning Mrs. Franklin, who lives at Tenth and Marke streets, went to her store, and found that several articles were missing, viz.:—2 Persian silk gowns; 2 boxes gents' kid gloves; 1 puffed nightdress; I dozen ladies' stockings; and I carriage afighan. The value of the articles stolen amounted to $150. The thieves had walked in the front door, which had been left open, and helped themselves at their leisure.

from the bat-rack. Last night, about half-past 8 o'clock, the same dodge was played at the residence of Mrs. Cohen, No. 1828 Locustatreet. The thief secured three overcoats at this place. In both cases the doors had been left unfastened, in defance of all the warnings that have been issued by the public journals.

A NUISANCE .- In the upper and lower districts of our city there appears to be but little attention paid to the cleanlicess of the strects. Ashes and offal of all descriptions are thrown into the public thoroughfares, to ferment and become a nuisance. Every now and then the public authorities become alive to the fact, and a few examples are made. Yesterday morning a man was arrested in Water street, below South, on a charge of throwing ashes into the street. He had a hearing before Alderman Butler, and was fined for breach of ordinance, ENTERPRISE.—The great requisites for success in America are pluck and enterprise; and Helmbold, the well-known druggist, has in his business career evinced both of these qualities. The consequence is that he has ach eved a success. These preparations, it is almost needless to say, are not "quack medicines" nor "patent m dicines;" they are simply legitimate, scientifically compounded preparations, which, for their appropriate com-plaints, are without a rival. They have been before the public for many years, and are at the present moment more in demand than ever. This shows conclusively their genuine merit. At Helmbold's New Store, next the hetropolitan Hotel, in addition New Store, next the metropolitan notet, in addition to these preparations—the Extracts of Buchu and Saraparills—are sold all varieties of Drugs and Chemica's. A Call for a Caucus-Excitement about Impeachment-Mr. Stevens and the United States Senatorship-Land and Patent Office Affairs, Etc. Etc.

SPECIAL DESPATCHES TO EVENING TELEGRAPH. I WASHINGTON, January 5.

The Impeachment Question. A call has been issued for a cancus of the Republican members of the House of Representatives this evening. A large number of the members are absent from the city, and it has been urged to postpone the caucus until there was a full house, but it is held to be advisable to meet to-night for consultation, in view of the threatened action by Mr. Ashley in taking initiatory steps next week for the impeachment of the President. A perfect shower of remonstrances against the attempt at impeachment is reaching members or Congress from financial circles, and it is almost certain that the measure will be quietly shelved by reference to some committee. probably the Judiciary Committee.

The Opera Don't Pay. The Maretzek Italian Opera Company is performing to thin houses here, and has been compelled to reduce the price of admission.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS. House of Representatives.

Washington, January 5.—Under the agreement made yesterday, no business was in order except general debate, as if in Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union.

Mr. Spaulding (Ohio) having the floor, made some remarks in reply to the observations of Mr. Stevens reflecting on h'm, made the day before the adjournment over for the hordays. It so happened that whenever he (Mr. Spaulding) made a remark in the House, he was subjected to the caustic criticism of the learned gentleman from Pennsylvania, So when he undercook, in the most innocent mancism of the learned gentleman from Pennsylvania. So when he undertook, in the most innocent manner, to explain his statements in reference to the lately rebellious States, and to show that injustice had been done him in the Washington Chronicle, the gentleman (Mr. Stevens) had declared that his argument was not equal to the argument of the editor, and that the doc rine implied in the resolution on which that article commested, was the most perfinal free reconstruction of the Government.

That resolution simply instructed the Judiciary Committee to report what was the view of Congress in passing the Constitutional amendment. His friend had once made a good humored fling at him

Committee to report what was the view of Congress in passing the Constitutional amendment. His friend had once may a good-humored flug at him when he happened to differ with him in some of his propositions, by saying there was a vacant Judgeship in North Ohio. He schnowledged the hit (laughter), but he was not a candidate for that Judgeship. He might call his friend's attention, however, to a very enlogistic notice of him in connection with a sea in the United States Senate. (Laughter.)

the United States Senate. (Laughter.)

Let the one offset the other, and let it be understood that neither of them were in much danger of temptation. Referring to the Constitutional Amendment, he delared that his original understanding was that it was to be taken as a measure of conciliation in part the between loyal and dis oyal States, and that when the latter should have signified their approbation of the Constitutional Amendment, and should have modelled their State Governments so as to pass the ordeal of Congress, they would be admitted to representation.

be the rapid recuperation of the State from losses by the Rebellion, and greatly as we may rejoice in the marvellous prosperity which attends upon our new condition of freedom, we have yet to recover the greatest losses entailed by the civil war, that of our financial credit as a State. You have now an opportu nity of giving our people cause for rejoicing, ex-ceeding that afforded by any event since the return of peace, by restoring that credit, and this, too, under circumstances which enable you at the same time to reduce the heavy burden of taxes to about one-half of the levy of last year, and yet have a perfect assurance of being able to meet the accruing interest on our State debt. Twelve months have brought hundreds of thousands of people with their wealth of property and labor to strengthen our financial ability. No parallel exists to the rapidity with which wealth has accumulated in every avenue of industry-with which population has increased in every part of our State. Within the past year substantial proofs of advancing prosperity on every hand attest the sudden and unexampled growth of the State. Our taxable wealth has grown from $198,602,216, in 1863, and from $282,354,932, in 1865, to a sum which, through the means of the law establishing a State board for the equalization of taxes, passed at the last session, will reach $400,000,000. Assured of your full and hearty co-operation in the measures herein proposed, it is ample compensation to me for whatever of labor or thought I have put forth or exercised, or for whatever of despondency I bave experienced in the dark and trying hours of the struggle to redeem our financial honor, to be enabled to give you and to send to our creditors abroad a New-Year's greeting in the announcement which I make, with serious con-fidence, that free Missouri will, within the year,

THE DERRINGER CASE. Hearing before United States Commis-stoner Smith this Morning,

This morning, Calhonn M. Derringer had a hearing before United States Commissioner Smith, Assessor of the Second Congressional District of Pennsylvania, on the charge of demanding and receiving from one George Boyd certain compensation and fee and reward other than those provided by law for the performance of his duties as Assessor, and was guilty of extortion and oppression in office.

Charles Humphreys sworn—Q. You recently held the office of Assistant Assessor of the United States? A. Yes, sir; I held it until the first of the year. Q. Did you make any report to the Assessor of the Second District, and if so, was it in reterence to the non-payment of a certain tax upon coffee reasted by a merchant on Market street? A. I made a report to Mr. Derringer, that G. Boyd I had every reason to believe was roasting coffee and not resturning to the Government the tax upon it. Q. Was it in writing? A. No, sir, Mr. Derringer Q. Was it in writing? A. No, sir, Mr. Derringer requested me to put it in writing afterwards, which I did. Q. When was this? A. I don't remember exactly; it was somewhere about the 1st of November; I made no note of it. Q. Did you state in that letter what section of the law had been violated? A. I did, to the best of my knowledge. Q. Did you state also the penalty? A. Yes, sir. Q. Do you know Mr. Derringer's handwriting? A. Yes, sir.

A letter was here shown to the witness, and he recognized the writing as defendant's. It was dated December 19, 1866, and was addressed to G. Boyd, Esq. The contents were that the writer had made an investigation, and felt satisfied that Boyd did not intend to defraud the Government, and that he would exempt him from paying all taxes if he would pay $100 as a tax on the troasting coffee. Another letter was shown to witness which he recognized also. Its contents were nearly the same as the other.

contents were nearly the same as the other-Prisoner said they were duplicates.

Examination resumed—Q. Do you know John E. Faunce? A. Yee, sir; I have seen him at Mr. Derringer's office. Q. How often? A.
Two or three times, more or less. Q. Do you know that Mr. Derringer was in the habit of referring his matters to Mr. Faunce, as his attorney? A. Yes, sir; in this case of coffee, and in that of one other only. Q. Did Mr.
Derringer tell you that he had referred this matter to Mr. Faunce? A. I made inquiries once concerning what disposition had been once concerning what disposition had made of the case,

Question by the Commissioner—To whom?
A. Mr. Derringer; he told me that he was not satisfied as to the guilt of Mr. Boyd—of his intentional guilt—and he had referred the matter to his counsel. ter to his counsel.

Some receipts were here shown to the witness, but he could not recognize the handwriting. Q. Up to the date of your leaving your position as Assistant Assessor, did Mr. Derringer inform you how this matter had been disposed of? A.

Mr. Collis then stated that Mr. Boyd had been subpænsed, but bad not appeared. He knew he was willing to come, but some one had informed ilm that he was away.

Mr. Derringer, when asked if he had any counsel, replied that he understood the case, and would discharge the duties of one himself.

A recess was then taken until half-past 1 o'clock. George Boyd sworn-I reside No. 225 N. Thirteenth street; I am a member of the firm of G. Boyd & Co.; I have the southeast and southwest corners of Twelfth and Market streets; the southeast corner is a coffee and tea store and the southwest groceries; I know detendant; I was acquainted with him years ago; recently I re-ceived a printed notice from defendant, about the last of November, to call at his office to answer the charge of roasting coffee without a license; I called next morning at 10 o'clock, and saw Mr. Faunce at Mr. Derringer's office, in Walnut street; I said to defendant that this was a matter which I did not know that I had been guilty of; defendant said that charges had been made against me, and that it was his duty to examine into them; Mr. Faunce and detendant asked the same questions, and asked me to produce my books and papers, which I afterwards did; no conclusion was come to; defendant said be would examine and let me know; this was before Thanksgiving day; I made an appointment to meet defendant next day: Mr. Faunce was not there; I saw defendant, and he said be had given the matter into Mr. Faunce's hands to examine; a day or two after I went down and was examined by defendant; he had a number of questions written out, such as the number of hands, wages paid, house rent, etc.: the charge of roasting coffee without payment of tax was spoken of by defendant at a former in-terview; I said it was so; I supposed my license for retail dealer covered that, as we roasted for our own business, our own customers, for sale at our stores; I asked defendant who made the charge; he said he was not at liberty to tell, that there was so much secret service; the other charge was for not returning a full account of sale or income; I said the year before I had lost, as in the year 1865; I had made heavy returns, and in 1866 I found I had lost a large amount of the supposed income, and I thought I had done right in deducting it; I made a conscientious return between the Government and myself; defendant told me to call the next day and bring the books down to his office: I brought the books for coffee; Mr. Fannce was present at the first interview when the coffee books were brought; defendant said I had better call and see Mr. Faunce at his office, as he had the matter in charge; I asked where his office was; he said No. 512 Walnut street; Mr. Faunce handed me a paper with his address, and appointed me et him there next day at twelve o'clock.
